— OBSERV Como existen muchas expresiones con el verbo tener se han tratado generalmente en el artículo correspondiente al sustantivo de la frase considerada.

— OBSERV The auxiliary verb to have is usually translated by haber. If, however, one wishes to stress the result obtained, the verb tener may replace haber as the auxiliary. In this case the past participle agrees in number and gender with the object of the verb: tengo ahorradas unas veinte mil pesetas I have (got) some twenty thousand pesetas saved up (he ahorrado veinte mil pesetas I have saved twenty thousand pesetas). This usage of tener as an auxiliary verb does not necessarily affect the English translation: no tengo acabado el trabajo I haven't finished the work.

— OBSERV Cuando el verbo to have significa to possess va seguido muy frecuentemente en el habla corriente por el participio pasivo got sin que sea modificado el sentido: tengo una casa I have got a house.

— OBSERV El pretérito y el participio pasivo de este verbo son irregulares: had, así como la tercera persona del singular del presente de indicativo: has.

— OBSERV. El signo (ː) colocado después de una vocal indica que ésta es larga. El asterisco (*) señala que la r escrita en posición final no se pronuncia en Gran Bretaña, excepto cuando la palabra siguiente empieza por vocal. En los Estados Unidos esta r se pronuncia siempre.

Además de los símbolos incluidos en el cuadro se han utilizado otros tres para representar sonidos nasales existentes en palabras tomadas del francés que son a (vol-au-vent [ˈvɒləʉvən]), ɛ (lingerie [ˈleɪʒəri]) y ɔ (wagon-lit [ˈvæɡɒnˈliː]).

Para conocer la relación entre los sonidos ingleses y los castellanos es preciso consultar el apartado del «Resumen de gramática inglesa» dedicado a la pronunciación.

1. CASES WHERE to be IS TRANSLATED BY ser 2. TRANSLATED BY estar 3. VERBS WHICH MAY REPLACE ser AND estar 4. to be IN THE PASSIVE VOICE 5. to be WITH A GERUND 6. OTHER TRANSLATIONS 7. IMPERSONAL to be 8. to be AS A COMPOUND VERB 9. to be IN ELLIPTICAL CONSTRUCTIONS 10. EXPRESSIONS WITH to be.

1. To be IS TRANSLATED BY ser

a) when followed by a noun, a pronoun, a numeral, a clause or an infinitive; he is a doctor es médico; the prettiest of the girls is Catherine la más guapa de las chicas es Catalina; that is nothing eso no es nada; it was you who did it eres tú quien lo hizo; we were four eramos cuatro; the treasure is what interests him el tesoro es lo que le interesa; his ambition is to write an opera su ambición es escribir una ópera.

b) when followed by an adjective which indicates an essential or inherent characteristic of the subject; ice is cold el hielo es frío; this child is naughty este niño es malo; the Mediterranean is blue el Mediterráneo es azul; he is rich, obstinate es rico, obstinado; he is happy es feliz.

c) in certain cases when used as an auxiliary verb in the passive voice (see no. 4 below).

d) when used with certain adjectives such as feliz, infeliz, cierto, indudable, notorio, evidente, frecuente, posible, imposible, probable, improbable, necesario.

e) when the complement indicates possession, authorship, provenance, composition, cause or purpose; this watch is Raymond's este reloj es de Ramón; it's a Gainsborough es de Gainsborough; Barry is from London Barry es de Londres; this table is mahogany esta mesa es de caoba; it was because of his brother that he was arrested fue a causa de su hermano que le detuvieron; this polish is for black shoes este betún es para zapatos negros.

2. To be IS TRANSLATED BY estar

a) when used with an adjective or a phrase which indicates an accidental or temporary state; my tea is cold mi té está frío; the child is unhappy when his mother is not there el niño está triste cuando no está su madre; the sky was overcast when the storm broke el cielo estaba encapotado cuando estalló la tormenta; my uncle is ill mi tío está enfermo; how are you? ¿cómo estás?; Mary is very pretty today María está muy guapa hoy; the soup is too salty la sopa está demasiado salada; yesterday you were in a bad mood ayer estabas de mal humor.

b) to express position in space or time; he is in the garden está en el jardín; Paris is in France París está en Francia; we are in summer estamos en verano.

c) in certain cases when used as an auxiliary verb in the passive voice (see no. 4 below).

d) when used with certain adjectives such as contento, descontento, satisfecho, insatisfecho, solo, enfermo.

3. VERBS WHICH MAY REPLACE ser AND estar

Ser and estar may occasionally be replaced by several semi-auxiliary verbs:

a) by resultar or quedar when the predicate indicates the consequence of a previous action or event; he was injured in an accident resultó herido en un accidente; he was transformed by his journey quedó transformado por su viaje.

b) by ir; he is always well dressed siempre va bien vestido; andar; he is always in a bad mood anda siempre de mal humor; encontrarse or hallarse; we were in Madrid when it happened nos encontrábamos en Madrid cuando ocurrió; llegar; he is always on time siempre llega a la hora.

c) by seguir or continuar to indicate a continued state; he is still ill sigue enfermo; he is still at university continúa en la universidad.

4. To be AS AN AUXILIARY IN THE PASSIVE VOICE
a) ser is used as the auxiliary verb in Spanish if the agent, whether expressed or not, is active; he was arrested by the police fue arrestado por la policía; to be loved is every woman's ideal ser amada es el ideal de toda mujer.

b) estar is used as the auxiliary verb to emphasize the result of an action rather than the action itself; Spain is separated from France by the Pyrenees España está separada de Francia por los Pirineos.

c) in Spanish the use of the passive form is often avoided, being replaced by the active form if the agent is expressed or by the reflexive form if the agent is not expressed; he was knocked down by a car le atropelló un coche; English is spoken the world over se habla inglés en el mundo entero.

5. To be WITH A GERUND

To be with a gerund is translated:

a) in most cases by estar with the gerund of the accompanying verb; he is always smoking siempre está fumando; they are eating están comiendo.

b) by the present or future indicative of the accompanying verb when the idea expressed is one of action in the near future; he is leaving for Madrid tomorrow se marcha a Madrid mañana.

6. OTHER TRANSLATIONS OF to be

a) to be, when followed by certain adjectives, and when the subject is a person or an animal, is often translated by tener with the corresponding noun; he is hot, cold, hungry, thirsty, ashamed, sleepy, in a hurry tiene calor, frío, hambre, sed, vergüenza, sueño, prisa; my hands are cold tengo las manos frías; to be right tener razón; how old are you? cuántos años tienes? I am twenty years old tengo veinte años.
b) with adjectives expressing emotion caused by a certain event to be is translated by quedarse; I was flabbergasted me quedé boquiabierto; he was utterly astonished se quedó extrañado; he was very disappointed se quedó muy desilusionado.

7. IMPERSONAL to be

a) in the expression there is (there are, there were, etc.) to be is translated by haber; there were not many cars on the road no había muchos coches en la carretera; there is no bread no hay pan.

b) when followed by an adverb or adverbial phrase of time or place, to be is translated by ser if the subject is impersonal; do you know where he lives? I think it's here ¿sabes dónde vive? creo que es aquí; it is late es tarde; it will be in summer será en verano; it is one o'clock es la una; it was five o'clock eran las cinco.

c) when used with an adjective in an impersonal expression to be is translated by ser; it is important that I see him es importante que le vea; it is useless going now es inútil ir ahora (notice, however, that with the adjective claro the verb estar must be used: it is obvious that he is drunk está claro que está borracho).

d) other impersonal expressions; as though it were nothing at all como quien no quiere la cosa; he did it as though it were nothing at all lo hizo como quien no quiere la cosa || it is time to ya es hora de || it's about time! ¡ya era hora!
